MR. A. H. H. STUART'S REMARKS,
AT THE CONSERVATIVE MEETING IN AUGUSTA.

The questions now presented for the decision of the people affected not merely the policy of administration, but the very existence and peace of civil society. A wicked attempt is now made by an unscrupulous party, in violation of the Constitution and of every obligation held sacred among men, to subvert the whole structure of our institutions, and to invert the position of the elements of which it is composed. It has always been received as an axiom in politics, that the virtue and intelligence of the constituent body were the only safe foundation on which free governments could rest. The stability of all representative republican governments depends on the amount of these qualities possessed by those entrusted with the election franchise. The effort now is to disregard this cardinal principle, and to sink the virtue and intelligence of the country and bring its ignorance and vice to the surface, as the controlling power of the government. He need not depict the consequences of such a process. All must see that the result would be the utter overthrow of all securities for life, liberty and property. And yet with a full knowledge of these facts the dominant party in Congress, not having the fear of God before their eyes, but seduced by the instigation of the Devil—in violation of the obligations of the Constitution—of the sanctity of official oaths—and of their duty to their fellow-men, were persistently seeking to fasten upon us degradation and ruin.

Mr. Stuart then dwelt earnestly on the duty of every man to use every effort in his power, to avert from our beloved country such fearful calamities.

Mr. Stuart said he had never been the advocate of universal suffrage, even when suffrage was confined to white men. He thought George Mason stated the true principle, in the Virginia Bill of Rights, when he limited it to those who had a permanent interest in and common attachment to the community. But if such limitations were proper then, how much more so are they now, when a new element, so potent for mischief, and so ignorant of the practical bearings of all political questions, was introduced into our political community.

Slavery was forever dead, and he doubted if there was a single man in the sound of his voice, who would be willing to have it re-established. All are ready to treat it as a thing of the past, and he believed that all were disposed to treat the negro race fairly and kindly. For himself, he entertained and always had cherished, the kindest feelings for them. He had sought to do his duty by those who had been his slaves, and he believed they cherished for him the kindest sentiments. He believed that if the negroes had been left alone, they would have got on in harmony with the whites. But mischievous and designing men had been sent among them, to deceive and mislead them. The recent elections showed that they had been successful. It was natural that these ignorant and confiding people should be misled. He was not disposed to deal harshly with them for this error. It was not their fault, but that of the knaves who deceived and betrayed them. But the time was now at hand when the colored people must decide, with their eyes open, what their future course would be.

Persons in the country wishing to have their Pianos tuned or repaired, can make arrangements by addressing, VICTOR BECKER, Alexandria, Va. sep 13

POULTERER'S FRIEND.
A CERTAIN CURE FOR
GAPES AND OTHER DISEASES IN
CHICKENS AND TURKEYS.
A Certain Preventive of Chicken Cholera.
Will prevent disease in all kinds of fowl, and promote an increase of fat. Read the following:
Jefferson, Frederick co., Md.,
July 22d, 1867.

Messrs. Clotworthy & Co.:
Gentle: The wonderful cures which have been made by your Poulterers' Friend cannot fail to interest all who raise poultry. A gentleman of this village has been experimenting on chickens with the gapes. He tried your Poulterers' Friend, according to the directions, and it had the desired effect in removing the worm, effectually relieving the chicken at once. Since then I have had many calls for it, and it has been used extensively with the same result. It is of incalculable value to all who raise poultry.
Respectfully,
A. SPENCER.

CITY HOTEL, ALEXANDRIA, VA.
WM. H. PRINCE, General Supt.
This popular and long established Hotel, under its new management, is now open for the reception of guests; and travellers, who may select it as a temporary resting place, or those choosing it as a permanent home, will have cause to regret their choice.
The rooms are well furnished, and are kept neat and clean; the waiters are polite and attentive, and the table is supplied with all the delicacies the market affords. The Wines and Liquors kept in the bar room are of the most superior grades. Coaches are always in attendance to carry the guests to the house, and from the railroad depot, steamboat wharves, or any part of the city. nov 5
